Forecast for Sunday 11 Feb 2024

Weather: Rather cloudy start with bands of showery rain. These will pull away to the south by late morning with some brighter spells. Cloud soon making a return as bands of organised showers track eastward from midday. Scattered, mainly light, showers follow late afternoon and evening. Showers likely falling as snow above 700m during the evening and overnight. Cloud breaking up later.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 20% at first, improving by late morning to 80%.

Low cloud and visibility: Broken cloud at first with bases around 500m, lowering to 300-400m in association with any heavy showery rain. Bases lifting in the afternoon to be above summits although bases may briefly lower in the vicinity of showers to 500-700m. Poorer bases in any wintry showers overnight. Visibility good or very good outside of cloud, although moderate in showers and poor in any snow showers.
